Mental Health and Well-being in Schools - assessment and review

Unit summary

Mental health, in WHO's framing, is a state of well-being enabling coping, realising abilities and contributing - more than the absence of illness, and a basic human right. Well-being is a balance of demands against supports, and the school is one of the supports: its routines, belonging, feedback and safety are well-being machinery, and social-emotional learning works across income levels.

The observable signs - withdrawal, unexplained falls in marks, out-of-scale irritability, clustered absence, and talk of hopelessness - are read as patterns, never as diagnoses, and the talk is always taken as real. Self-harm talk and a sudden calm in distress demand same-day escalation.

The teacher's role has three parts: notice (the private map), respond within the classroom (the course's own moves as well-being machinery), and refer beyond it (the words written, dated, handed over the same day). The boundary protects the pupil twice over; what ends at the handover is the responsibility for treatment, never the relationship.

Summative assessment

Multiple-choice questions (MCQs)

1. WHO's definition of mental health is: (Remember) a) the absence of mental illness b) a state of mental well-being that enables people to cope with the stresses of life c) a feeling of happiness d) a diagnosis made by a doctor
2. "Mental health is more than the absence of illness" means: (Understand) a) illness does not exist b) a pupil without a diagnosis can still be unwell, and a diagnosed pupil can function well with supports c) diagnoses are always wrong d) only feelings matter
3. Well-being, in this unit's image, is: (Remember) a) a feeling of calm b) a balance of demands against supports c) the absence of demands d) high marks
4. The two Class 8 pupils show that: (Apply) a) marks measure well-being b) the staff room reads well-being backwards: the brilliant pupil's pan is loaded on one side only c) middling marks mean middling well-being d) boys are always steadier
5. Which of these is NOT a sign as this unit lists them? (Remember) a) withdrawal from friends and activities b) a fall in marks with no teaching explanation c) enjoying break time d) talk of hopelessness
6. The rule for reading signs is: (Understand) a) any single bad day is a sign b) read the pattern, not the day: the change that persists c) only marks count d) wait a month before noticing
7. The two same-day escalation signs are: (Remember) a) absence and irritability b) talk of self-harm, and a sudden calm in visible distress c) falling marks and withdrawal d) crying and anger
8. The teacher's role in well-being has: (Remember) a) one part: teach well and leave it there b) two parts: notice and treat c) three parts: notice, respond within the classroom, refer beyond it d) unlimited scope
9. Which classroom response is inside the teaching role? (Apply) a) diagnosing the pupil's condition b) promising to keep a disclosure secret c) keeping the routine unbroken and greeting by name d) counselling the pupil weekly

10. "Referring is giving up on the pupil" is: (Understand) a) true; the teacher should carry it alone b) false: the referral is the care delivered by the right hands, and the relationship continues after it c) true; only therapists help d) false; referrals are only for emergencies

Restricted-response questions (RRQs)

1. Explain WHO's definition of mental health and what it is more than. (Understand)
2. Explain the demands-and-supports balance with the two Class 8 pupils. (Apply)
3. Why is "who is ill?" the wrong school question? Give the right one. (Understand)
4. Explain how one station of the school day can be both a demand and a support, with an example. (Understand)
5. Describe any four signs a teacher can notice. (Understand)
6. Explain the rule for reading signs, and why a single bad Monday is not one. (Understand)
7. Describe the teacher's role in three parts, and say where the third one ends. (Understand)
8. Explain any four classroom responses and what each supports. (Understand)
9. Describe any three triggers for the same-day referral. (Understand)
10. Explain why the boundary protects the pupil twice over. (Analyze)

Extended-response questions (ERQs)

1. The brilliant pupil. The high marks and constant dread have been visible since September. Analyse her well-being balance, name the signs with their pattern, and describe the response within the teacher's role - what you would do this week, and what you would NOT do. (Analyze)
2. The walk of the timetable. Take one real school day and walk it station by station: each station's demand and its current support, including the honest "none". Choose the one station whose flip would protect the most pupils, and design the flip - specific, cheap, inside this term's power. (Create)

3. The four-minute walk. The tutor's pupil disclosed something she could not carry alone. Write what she did next as a plan: what she wrote down and why the words matter, who she walked it to, what she said to the pupil before she went, and what she did NOT do. (Analyze)
4. The confidence. A pupil says "please don't tell anyone" and then discloses something that must be escalated. Analyse the position: what the pupil is really asking for, what the teacher can and cannot promise, and how the teacher gets the walk made without betraying the relationship. (Analyze)
5. The well-being audit. Design a one-page well-being audit for your school: the stations, the demands, the supports, the pupils you would watch and how, and the referral route with its designated person by role. Justify each element from this unit, and name the audit's honest limit. (Create)

Answers and marking guidance

MCQ answer key

1. b - a state of well-being enabling coping; the definition is a functioning, not a diagnosis.
2. b - the undiagnosed can be unwell; the diagnosed can function with supports.
3. b - a balance of demands and supports.
4. b - the staff room has the balance backwards.
5. c - enjoying break is a support, not a sign.
6. b - the pattern, not the day.
7. b - self-harm talk, and the sudden calm that can mean a decision made.
8. c - notice, respond, refer.
9. c - the routine and the greeting: protective, and inside the role.
10. b - the referral is the care; the relationship continues.

RRQ model answers and mark schemes

Award marks for the substance below, not for matching wording.

1. A state of mental well-being enabling people to cope with the stresses of life, realise abilities, learn, work, contribute (1); more than the absence of illness (1).
2. Her pan: exam demands, comparison, midnight revision, no visible supports; his: work, play, sleep, steady balance (1); the staff room reads the marks as well-being and misses hers (1).
3. The wrong question looks for illness; the right one asks who is coping and who is not (2).
4. Any station with both sides named: assembly (public comparison / predictable start); break (social test / the peer group that includes); last period (spent attention / one-demand rule) (2).
5. Any four of: withdrawal; unexplained fall in marks; out-of-scale irritability; clustered absence; changes in self-care; talk of hopelessness (2).
6. Read the pattern, not the day - the change that persists (1); a single bad Monday is within ordinary life, and treating it as a sign cheapens the noticing (1).
7. Notice (the private map), respond within the classroom, refer beyond it (1); the third ends at the handover - the responsibility for treatment, never the relationship (1).
8. Any four of: greet by name (belonging); keep the routine (predictability); reduce the demand you control (load); name feelings calmly (the workbench returned); keep included by role (inclusion) (2).
9. Any three of: talk of self-harm; sudden calm in distress; a pattern deepening despite supports; anything the teacher cannot keep safe (2).
10. It protects against a teacher counselling beyond training (harm no kindness repairs), and against a confidence that leaves the pupil carrying it alone (2).

ERQ rubrics

Each ERQ is marked out of 20 using the analytic scheme below.

ERQ 1 - the brilliant pupil

| Criterion                                          | Marks |
|----------------------------------------------------|-------|
| The balance is drawn honestly, both pans evidenced | 5     |

| Criterion                                                                    | Marks |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| The signs read as a pattern, with duration and clustering ( Analyze ) | 7     |
| The response is within the role, and the not-do list is exact                | 4     |
| Plain, accurate, organised writing within the word count                     | 4     |

ERQ 2 - the walk of the timetable

| Criterion                                                                 | Marks |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| Every station carries both sides, including the honest "none"             | 6     |
| The chosen flip is specific, cheap and inside this term ( Create ) | 7     |
| The choice is defended against the second-best station                    | 3     |
| Plain, accurate, organised writing within the word count                  | 4     |

ERQ 3 - the four-minute walk

| Criterion                                                                     | Marks |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| The record is understood: verbatim, dated, written                            | 5     |
| The pupil is prepared, not ambushed; the not-do list exact ( Analyze ) | 8     |
| What continues after the handover is named                                    | 3     |
| Plain, accurate, organised writing within the word count                      | 4     |

ERQ 4 - the confidence

| Criterion                                                   | Marks |
|-------------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| What the pupil is really asking for is analysed             | 5     |
| What can and cannot be promised is exact ( Analyze ) | 7     |
| How the walk gets made without betrayal is concrete         | 4     |
| Plain, accurate, organised writing within the word count    | 4     |

ERQ 5 - the well-being audit

| Criterion                                                                                | Marks |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------|
| Stations, demands, supports, watch-list and referral route all present ( Create ) | 8     |
| Every element justified from the unit                                                    | 6     |
| The honest limit is named                                                                | 2     |
| Plain, accurate, organised writing within the word count                                 | 4     |
